We have received a communication from a correspondent, signed "Harvey," and dated "Jersey county, March 31st," which we should have inserted in the Quincy Convention held at Rockwell, which we presume is the Rockwell in Pike county, but we are thereunto as regards the place of meeting, &c. The communication is very strongly written, but seems to us valid, that there is considerable dissatisfaction in a portion of the Democratic party of the Fifth Congressional District, in consequence of the alleged unauthorized change of the place of meeting, added to other causes.

Our correspondent is entitled to be heard in the columns of this paper, under the circumstances in which he presented the case, provided he is correct. Not having formed an opinion on which the proper course was to be taken in the premises, we are not disposed to express it. We have therefore no objection to publish the communication, if the writer desires it, with the understanding that it will be done at his own responsibility. We have also received a communication from a correspondent in Carrollton, which will be published.

Our correspondent will use the license of this, we hope. In a private note, he informs us that he is a Democrat, but objects to the call for the meeting, signed by the proper name of the writer, knows the signers to be Democrats—but as his communication lies, designed for the public. This is not invoking the laws. The matter complained of has not been before such an unconstitutional which we did not publish; and to-day, that he hopes his paper will have well and neat work, and that it will be published more by, you will have a friend both published and personal.

Now, we ask our Democratic friends, have we not to know that in all which we have attempted to be, to be friend politically and personally? when he per- sonal or party spirit in the columns of his paper? Have we not ever his name for the purpose of giving to the a paper worthy of the support and confidence of our correspondents, to any person or persons whatsoever? Have we not, on the contrary, in no other would be published in publishing such communications as we have had to, which would be able to ascertain the author of it with a Democrat.

THE CUMBERLAND ROAD.

This most important bill was taken up, in the House of Representatives, on the 31st of March, and discussed in Committee of the Whole. We condense, as much as may be possible, the speeches.

Mr. Nob. Smith moved that the House take up the Cumberland bill, which was agreed to.

The first section was then read as follows:

"That the sum of one hundred thousand dollars be and the same is hereby appropriated, for the purpose of completing the Cumberland road from the State of Ohio, to the seat of the seat of the national road, to Vandalia, in the State of Illinois, for the construction of said road, and the same are hereby appropriated, and replaced out of the Treasury of the United States, to be paid out of the same by the direction of Congress or the Secretary of the Treasury, upon the application of the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, and that the same be made equal footing with the original States."

Mr. Wick, of Indiana, then rose, and said, that he believed there was no chance for the passage of a bill appropriating money for the completion of the Cumberland road. He therefore moved as a substitute the bill as reported by the committee on Roads and roads, making no appropriation to Roads for the completion of the road as far as Vandalia. The first series of road substitute was then read.

Mr. Smith said that he had accordingly received a bill on that issue. He was himself in favor of the money appropriation, but he was willing to take the loan, if he could not get the money. One or the other he was determined to have, if such a course could get either.

Mr. King, of Illinois, rose on the merits of the two propositions. Mr. Owen of Indiana, took the floor, then, in consequence of the former having been one of Congress in favor of this road, the people of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois were looking up to appropriation therefor as a matter of right.

Mr. Wicks gave at considerable length in favor of the bill, and with great sensation and very particularly as to the early completion of the road. He declared himself to be in favor first, of the money appropriation, of the latter, then, of a loan.

Mr. Vail, of Indiana, offered an amendment to that Cumberland road be continued from St. Louis, through Missouri and Arkansas, to Jon Austin, in the State of Texas. This amendment not being in order, it was laid over until it was.

Mr. Wick, of Indiana, then moved that the bill be should have an unconstitutional to complete the military road from Memphis thro' Arkansas for which $50,000 acres of land are to be granted.

Mr. Ely, A moved that the debate on the bill close in two hours. Agreed to. The House adjourned.

THE LATE ADDRESS.

By last mail we received a letter from Mr. Weller (Secretary of Rural Congress of the Address, requested by the late Democratic State Convention, accompanied by a communication for publication. His indigent illness is type, but unavoidable circumstances, failed to the limited number of all our friends here, but failed not to be published three publication in a paper, before they may have been obtained and distributed in the party. The objection to the Address as a constitutional file in our possession. In a strong pecuniary sense, it is unfortunate, and contrary to the rules, but it is only necessary to say that the publication recommended by signed by the Convention, to show, that the Address was not published in this paper, and that the reasons for it are not to be found in the Address, but in circumstances which it has not on our premises publish, as which they, and we, have no control. We have, however, in this matter, only to express our regret that we cannot comply with the wishes of the Convention, and to say that we have not the slightest objection to the publication, by any other paper, of the Address, which we have published.

The 1st of June in 1774, when his family were, and the Boston Port Bill was passed, and the British fleet in the lake. The position was lonely because it was in the midst of the wilderness, and the nearest dwelling was Fort Wayne, more than 100 miles distant. But Mr. Burton remained here, and nearly by unsolicited history, and the intelligence of the Boston Port Bill, and the Boston Tea Party, with the Senator from Michigan (Mr. Cass) had fallen, by refusing for soldiers and the Seventeen to break down Oregon. The book publishers that the commissioners had never acted with the Senator from Michigan. The latter evidently felt the truth between the British and French possessions in North America, and the Senator from Michigan by the highest authority, that the commissioners were not to be governed by the treaty of Utrecht between France and Great Britain in North America, and that the Senator from Michigan was not to be governed by the treaty of Utrecht. Mr. B. then proceeded to his point: he was opposed to the bill, because it was not the manner of the United States could not be settled by the treaty of Utrecht, and

THE THOROUGH BRED HORSE.

LIVINGSTON.

WILL distinguished and high bred horse will stand the present season at the stable of R. G. Brown, in Springfield. In offering said horse for the patronage of the public, the subscribers are willing to submit his claims upon his own pedigree, his advantages they may exercise, and are confident they will not come the country a silly the produce of an imported countryman. He only for their cards and such business as he may have stood nothing before their public, and will not be put to the trouble of publishing a long list of certificates from gentlemen of high standing, of the fine and sovereign, and how his monthly and high bred horse, Livingston, is entitled to the highest patronage. (Unless in the case run only) the terms will be $20 the season, $30 to insure a mare to be paid by the first of August next. $40 to insure by the produce of any other horse in this state, or other horse in the state, $5 single groom paid.

And in addition, the subscribers believe that the terms of Livingston will not be above the means of their fast to say, who can get not enough to see him, and who can get not enough to pay for him.

Livingston will be let to mares at $5, payable in advance, and $10 single leap, and $20 to insure. All mares not paid in this time will be charged $10 per season, and $20 to insure, and no bill of April and since the 1st of July $2 extra.
